

REPORT OF ORIENTATION BY ICC FOR BATCH OF 2028 &2029

The Internship Coordination Committee organized an orientation session for the batch of 2028, and 2029 on 16 September, 2024. It was conducted in the seminar hall in the administrative block. The purpose of the event was to introduce students to ICC and the range of internship possibilities that are available, including those in both the public and private sectors.

The Vice Chancellor Dr KVS Sarma, and ICC faculty advisors attended the occasion. The ICC convenor, Darshana Chetry, gave a brief introduction to the attendees. She invited one of the faculty advisors Mr. Shailendra Kumar and Vice Chancellor Sir to speak who then enlightened the students with their words of wisdom and underlined how important internships are in helping students develop professionally and shape their careers. They also emphasized how crucial networking and practical experience are in the cutthroat employment market of today. The speakers of the session included three students from the batch of 2025 who gave their valuable insights on various topics:

1. Priyanshu Fauzdar- He elucidated on why internships are important and highly beneficial for law students and the different types of internships that can be done to enhance their practical skills in the field of law. He also gave some more miscellaneous tips and insights that could prove helpful for the students.
2. Shruti Srivastava- She explained on how to manage expectations before and after internships, provided guidance on internship etiquettes and offered tips on how to secure internships effectively, including the role of seeking feedback and maintaining professionalism.
3. Shivang Mishra- He gave his beneficial guidance on the application process and resume building for securing good internships. He explained how to make a structured and professional cover letter and why planning in advance is key. He also elaborated on how academics and extra curriculars like paper publications are important for resume building and helps in the long run.

The session was concluded with a Q/A where students actively participated, gaining clarity on various aspects of internships. The orientation effectively gave students the fundamental knowledge they needed to understand internships and their significance for professional development. All the speakers offered insightful information about the several kinds of internships that are available, the importance of real-world experience in advancing one's career, and how to approach internship possibilities with confidence and professionalism. In addition to offering advice on how to land internships, the seminar emphasized the importance of networking and improving employability. It was an enlightening and enriching event for all students present.
